Statement regarding BAE Systems disposal

Almaty, Kazakhstan – Air Astana JSC (“Air Astana” and, together with its subsidiary FlyArystan, “the Group”) notes the announcement that BAE Systems plan to sell their remaining holding in the company. We would refer to their public disclosures for further details of the transaction.

BAE Systems has been a key partner of Air Astana since our inception. The company was formed as a joint venture between the Kazakhstan State and BAE Systems in 2001. BAE Systems reduced their holding to 16.95% as part of the Air Astana’s IPO in 2024 and sold a further 10.1% stake in December 2025. We recognise that Air Astana was no longer a core holding in the context of their wider operations and we look forward to welcoming new shareholders to the group at this exciting point in our development. We also note the increase to our free float as a function of the sale.

Air Astana recently reported results for the Full Year 2025 which showed a resilient performance with strong revenue and capacity growth. Total Revenue increased 11.4% to USD1,453.9m and EBITDAR increased 0.8% to USD321.2m (22.1% margin). Details of the results can be found via the below link:
