CCX Publishes Its Third Sustainability Report

JSC Caspy Commodity Exchange (CCX) has published its third Sustainability Report, presenting the Company's key achievements for 2025 and highlighting its continued progress in integrating ESG principles into corporate governance and business operations.

The report outlines CCX's performance in corporate governance, digital transformation, information security, human capital development, business ethics, and climate risk management. It has been prepared in accordance with the GRI Standards and incorporates the recommendations of the Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures (TCFD).

Among the key milestones of 2025 are the improvement of the Company's S&P Global ESG Score to 60, obtaining the status of an authorized commodity exchange for trading socially significant exchange-traded commodities, further development of the digital trading infrastructure, and continued enhancement of ESG and climate governance practices.

"Sustainability is an integral part of CCX's long-term strategy. Publishing our third Sustainability Report reflects our commitment to transparency, responsible corporate governance, and continuous improvement of ESG practices. We remain focused on creating long-term value for our clients, partners, shareholders, and the commodity market as a whole," said Murat Kadissov, President of JSC Caspy Commodity Exchange.
